

PI group advising

a different kind of networking | it can be lonely at the top, but it doesn't have to be

www.vanwaesconsulting.com

this is for you if you can yes to any of these

- you are facing leadership and management challenges that are common to my field.
- you'd love to network with other PIs in my field outside of the conference/workshop setting.
- you'd love to network with other PIs across disciplines.
- you thrive in group-based problem-solving and brainstorming.
- any other reason for small group counsel.

built around the specific needs of the group and may involve brainstorming, working on shared documents, sharing best practices and challenges, etc. always focused on practical, real-time solutions and action plans, not just hazy theory and chit-chat.

outcomes

1. productive, specific goals
2. soft-skills-building around leadership & management
3. reduced stress, improved motivation, and clearer thinking around management and leadership

This goes beyond coaching, getting down into the details with you and co-crafting specific strategies and tactics.
